THE OFFICIAL NEWSLETTER FOR PARENTS OF TEURLINGS CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

M A R C H , 2 0 0 6

From Our Principal...

Teurlings Catholic has recently completed the first phase of the admissions process for the 2006-2007 school term. In the year 2000, Bishop O'Donnell changed the demographics of TCH when he added three additional church parishes (Immaculate Heart of Mary, St. Bernard, and St. Peter) and three additional feeder schools (Immaculate Heart of Mary, St. Bernard, and Carecro Catholic) to the membership of our school. Historically, these parishes and schools had students at Teurlings and because of this restructuring, now had the same priority as the existing feeder parishes and schools. Currently, interest has increased at St. Ignatius School to secure feeder school status and owner parish status for St. Charles Borromeo Parish.

In November of 1998, I sent Bishop O'Donnell a thirty page document titled "Study of the Potential Need for a New Catholic School." Included in this comprehensive study were the demographics of both Lafayette and St. Martin Parishes, referring specifically to total population movements and school age projections. The list below, from that document, summarizes the reasons for the current favorable attendance trends in the Diocese of Lafayette. It was true in 1998 and is today as well.

- There are more school-age children, with anticipated growth through 2008-2009.
- Dissatisfaction with public education continues.
- There is escalating movement of the Catholic population to areas where there are no Catholic high schools.
- Growing secular trends in society and a desire to provide a value-based education for children has become apparent.
- A conservative trend has led to increased interest by many families in spiritual values and the desire for a Christ-centered education for their children.
- While many Catholic school parents struggle to pay tuition, a faith-filled education is deemed a priority, not a sacrifice.

This year we accepted 175 students from the list of 222 who applied, which meant 47 students who sought Catholic education were denied admission or placed on the waiting list. We recognized six years ago we were going to have a problem. We have a problem, and we are working very diligently for positive solutions that will benefit Teurlings Catholic for years to come. The building of the new classroom wing will place our students and teachers in technologically sound and comfortable classrooms. We will continue to upgrade our campus through the capital campaign as we prepare for the future. A future that will see increasing interest in Teurlings Catholic. We appreciate your prayers for the continued success of the capital campaign as we continue to Grow in Faith Together here at Teurlings Catholic High School.

ACADEMICS

Marty Heintz - Assistant Principal

Homework, homework, homework – no one likes it, everyone concedes it is necessary, and no one agrees on how much is too much or too little. As a curriculum supervisor, a teacher, a parent, a student, I've personally experienced homework from different angles, as have most of you. Because of that, I was intrigued by a recent AP/AOL poll that dealt with the homework issue. It also led me to do some follow-up with our own students on the issue.

According to the national poll, 19 percent of parents said their kids have too much homework. That would mean that 81 percent of parents think their kids have either the right amount or not enough. Also according to the poll, students at all grade levels spend an average of 90 minutes a night on homework, with high school students specifically spending an average of 105 minutes. However, in contrast to the results, many individual students polled said they never have homework except studying for the occasional test.

One item in the poll that caught my attention was the discrepancy between the length of time parents said their children spent on homework and the time the students themselves said they spent on homework. Makes sense, my parent brain tells me, that kids in their rooms supposedly working on homework for four hours are also using the computer to IM friends, checking email, talking on the phone, watching TV, playing video games, and doing all the things kids normally do.

I asked around our campus, nothing formal, just my own little spot check on homework. While our teachers are assigning – and grading homework – on a regular basis, the majority of our students find time here and there throughout the day to get the homework done before they head out to practice and other extracurricular activities. They are masters at using the 30 minutes at lunch, the 10 minutes at the break, homeroom period, the dress-in and dress-out time in PE, and any time they get 5 minutes here and there in their class schedule to get their written work finished during the day. Not surprising, the students who do not complete homework assignments are those with lower grades, according to teachers. In most cases, regularly completing homework boosts students' grades an entire letter grade.

Actually, it is not the written homework that bothers me. Most written homework is designed to reinforce skills learned in the classroom. Math problems provide a good example to reinforce the theory. The more math problems you work for practice, the better you get at solving them, just as the more time you spend throwing a pass or catching a ground ball, the better you get at it.

No, what bothers me is study time. There is a direct correlation for most students between the amount of time they spend studying for tests and the grades students earn on tests. The student who makes it through high school without ever really learning how to study for big tests is more likely to run into trouble in college courses. Glancing over notes five minutes before a high school chapter test may be ok now, but glancing over five weeks of notes five minutes before a college test just won't be enough.

Many of our students are what I call "achievers" – and as such are involved in multiple activities that leave them little time for homework and study. The students themselves have solved the written homework problem by utilizing their free time here on campus, but that doesn't help with true study time. The "study hall" period we had in high school 30 years ago has gone the way of the dinosaurs, thanks to high stakes testing and college admissions requirements. Likewise, the free time students had after school or in the evening 30 years ago has vanished as extracurricular activities, sports, and part-time jobs take their toll on after-school hours. Given the example we provide, with our own overscheduled adult lives, should we be surprised? It's not that our students have too much homework, but rather, that like us adults, they don't have enough time in the 24-hour day.

KUDOS TO SCHOOL PLAY!

email received by Mr. Boyer on 2/5/06

The play this year was great. TCHS has some really talented students and wonderful teachers. I know that a lot of time and practice went into this play, but hard work always pays off.

I have attended the plays for several years since my son John has attended TCHS. They have all been great. I look forward to the play next year.

Black History Mass

On February 2nd, Black History Mass was celebrated by Fr. James, pastor of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. Students from Immaculate Heart of Mary School joined us singing upbeat songs during mass. Following mass, a poem was read by Brittany Clement, Eugene Murray, and Cassie Boudreaux.

Feeder School Retreats

The senior retreat ministry class put on their first spring retreat for Sts. Leo-Seton 8th graders on February 10th. The theme was "Be God's Number One Fan," sending the message that we should put God first in our lives before everything else. Thanks to Abby Dumatrait and Brittni Leger for their hard work planning the retreat.

On February 24th, the retreat ministry spent the day with Rayne Catholic 6th and 7th graders. The theme was "Unmask Yourself," bringing the Mardi Gras spirit to life and reminding the students to shed their masks and let their genuine selves shine! Great job to Arielle Collado, Amber Collette, and Stefani Dumatrait for planning a spiritual and fun filled day!

Rebel Revival: Celebrate Yourself!

Report cards will be distributed at this time.
- ◆ Baccalaureate Mass will be held at 5:30 p.m. on Monday, May 22, 2006, at the Frem Boustany Convention Center, which is adjacent to the Heymann Center. Graduating seniors are to report at 4:45 p.m. on that day. Attendance at this Mass is mandatory for all graduates. In order to graduate on stage, the student must attend the Baccalaureate Mass. Due the limited seating capacity of the Convention Center, seating for the Baccalaureate Mass will be limited to immediate family of the graduates. Dress Code: Girls - Graduation cap and gown, white stole, black sheer stockings, black closed-toe shoes (no slides, must have a back). Boys - Graduation cap and gown, white stole, dark slacks and dark socks (blue, brown, charcoal, or black), dark dress shoes, a white shirt and an appropriate tie.
- ◆ The 2006 Graduation Ceremony will be held at the Heymann Performing Arts Center immediately following the Baccalaureate Mass. Guests not present for the Mass will not be admitted into the auditorium until after mass participants have entered, approximately 7:00 p.m. Attendance is, of course, mandatory. Dress Code: Same as Baccalaureate Mass. Girls will be given a class flower to hold and boys will wear a boutonniere. Beta Club, National Honor Society and Honor Graduates will receive additional accessories during the Convocation. These accessories should be worn Graduation night. No other decorations or flowers are allowed at the ceremony.

PLEASE NOTE THAT TEURLINGS CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL DOES NOT SPONSOR, NOR DOES IT ENDORSE ANY POST-GRADUATION PARTY OR GATHERINGS.

Graduates and their parents are reminded that Trinity Video Productions is producing a “Senior Highlight” video, which will include footage from graduation. If you have not already reserved your copy please contact Mr. David Mergeist of Trinity Video at 231-5432.

We hope that graduation can be a memorable event for everyone. Please direct any questions about graduation events to Mrs. Anna Proctor 235-5711, ext. 108 or Mrs. Vivica Marino 235-5711, ext. 222.
